

Train to be an International Protocol Specialist

Filed on December 31, 2015

A five-day Intensive Training Programme covering International Protocol, Diplomacy and Cross-Cultural Relations launches in Dubai.

Omar Al Muhairi, Director of Protocol, DP World, with Marie Betts-Johnson (Founder & Director - IPIC)

Levenbert Consulting and International Protocol Institute of California (IPIC) successfully launched their first batch of an international protocol certification programme, 'Train To Be An International Protocol Specialist' in December with excellent reviews and feedback from delegates of reputed organisations like Mohammed Bin Zayed Al Nahyan Office (MBZO), DP World, Abu Dhabi Terminals, SHUROOQ, Thomson Reuters, etc.

With an aim to introduce these programmes and expand into the MENA region, Levenbert and IPIC are planning to launch region specific Business Etiquette and International Protocol Training programmes to cater to government corporations, private organisations, entrepreneurs and individuals.

Levenbert is a known training and consultancy firm since 2009. It has designed and delivered hundreds of customised programmes on business etiquette, international business protocol, cross-cultural communications, interviewing skills and dining diplomacy, to top corporations, entrepreneurs, organisations and individuals in the US and Middle East who aspire for a higher level of confidence and business success.

The Second Training Course for 'International Protocol Specialists' is scheduled for March 12 - 17, 2016. Interested delegates may contact Barnali Dutta on 971 52 735 7300 or email barnali.dutta@levenbert.com
